

Green and the Living is Easy.

The Gables, based in Abington, Announces Commitment to Building Green

DATELINE: ABINGTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Stonebridge Homes, Inc., local home builders and developers, announced today a commitment to greener living at The Gables in Abington. In designing these luxury condominiums, Stonebridge Homes Incorporated mainstream green ideas into the community and the environment.

Set on 41 naturally-wooded acres off North Quincy Street and abutting Ames Nowell State Park, The Gables features include award-winning architecture, tennis and basketball courts, a fitness center, putting greens, high-end landscaping and a large clubhouse. An expansive and well-appointed clubhouse offers an attractive and convenient venue for receptions, celebrations and community events. Close to commuter rail stations in Abington, Brockton and Braintree, The Gables is a genuine destination place to unwind or enjoy activities with friends and neighbors.

This community is entirely aligned with growing requests for a greener daily life. The designers of The Gables, wanting to reduce the overall impact to the environment, considered many features and benefits for energy efficiency. Every one of the windows and doors are energy efficient products. The properly-sized 90% efficient systems will often cut energy bills and reduce its lifecycle costs because of its greatly reduced operating costs such as repairs.

The use of well-water to maintain the lush landscaping and other natural features instead of municipal resources is another important characteristic. The designer also minimizes wastewater by using ultra low-flush toilets and lastly installed high-efficiency lighting systems and task lighting reduces general energy use of the entire site. Some benefits, such as improving comfort, reducing pollution and waste are not easily quantified but will change the way residents live for years to come.

Many people today are looking for a greener lifestyle in their next home, to live somewhere that promotes the economic health and well being of family, the community and the environment. From energy efficient lighting to water conservation, The Gables is a spectacular model for greener living on the South Shore.

About Stonebridge Homebuilders

For more than 20 years, Stonebridge Homes and its team, now based in South Easton, Massachusetts, have built many residential communities throughout the northeastern United States. More recently, Stonebridge has been focusing on building in towns of southeastern Massachusetts, including Abington, Easton, Raynham, Taunton, Franklin, West Bridgewater, Pembroke, Whitman and Norwell. The styles of these communities have varied from imaginative condominiums to custom single-family homes designed by its award-winning in-house architect, whose specialty is customizing dream homes for individuals, couples and families. Each development is built with the same commitment to greener living quality and satisfaction.
